What Makes Canada a Preferred Destination for International Students?

by Stella Richard

Article published on April 23rd 2012 | College

With the United Nations ranking Canada as one of the best places to live in the world, it has been in the eye of many students who wish to gain international academic exposure and also aim to migrate to other countries for work. This has been derived based on the general quality of living, life expectancy and economic factors pertaining to national income, etc.

Over a period of time, it has also come to be known as an ideal destination to acquire quality education. There are number of factors that attract students from around the world to apply to universities in Canada â€“

1. The fact that Canada offers international students ample opportunity to apply for permanent residency after the completion of their graduate academic programs adds tremendous perceived value in the minds of young aspiring students. Statistics show that of all the students that apply for residency on the basis of studying for the post-secondary education program, 86% of them get accepted.

2. Generically speaking, the Canadian education system has been ranked among the best in the world in the likes of United Kingdom and the United States. At the same time, the tuition fees of the universities here are relatively inexpensive when compared to equivalent academic programs in other English speaking countries.

3. Additionally, Canada consists of a range of quality universities and educational institutions which offer a range of bachelorâ€™s and master programs in the forms of degree and diplomas. For example, Vancouver based colleges are known to offer an array of professional, managerial and technical vocations.

4. A major benefit of studying in this country is the fact that as a student, one is permitted to work on campus without the need to apply for any license or work permit. The government is also considering to open doors to off campus work for international students.

International students who hold a degree from a Canadian university or college also have the opportunity to work within the country for a period of one year from the time they are awarded their degree or diploma.

5. Another factor which makes Canada such a preferred destination for education tourism is the multi-cultural environment that they offer which adds to the entire experience and the consequent professional and personal development of an individual.

6. In addition to the above mentioned factors, the simpler things like the abundant availability of fresh water, low crime rates, sophisticated healthcare system and ideal population density result in offering all its residents a very comfortable lifestyle that is aspired by students and future professionals from around the world.

The country is working hard towards alluring students from China, India, and the European Nations for undergraduate and post-graduate education. With tremendous support from the government, colleges and universities have been able to efficiently build world class academic infrastructure suitable for an array of international students.

Canadian universities are globally renowned for their program across vocations and disciplines. Today, the Canadian MBA programs rank 5th among the top 10 global destinations for Business Studies. They also have high ranking colleges for marine biology, management, media, engineering, pharmacy and other research oriented programs as well. With a stable economic and political environment, this country has a lot to offer to its international students.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/college-articles/what-makes-canada-a-preferred-destination-for-international-students.htm - Article Side

Stella Richard - About Author:
Eton College is a PCTIA accredited private career a Vancouver College specializing in Flight Attendant Preparation, Hospitality Management, Travel & Tourism in Vancouver, BC, Canada.

Article Keywords:
Vancouver College, Business Management Course, Hotel Management College

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!