Bulk SMS â€“ Uses By Avena Sowell

Article published on February 15th 2012 | Communication

Everyone knows about â€˜textingâ€™. Nowadays it has been such a common way of communicating that some people really find it hard to survive without it even for a single day. Yes itâ€™s about SMSs, the rage in the mobile and also the internet; world which has got a whole generation on their knees before it. Be it the BBM (BlackBerry Messenger) or the normal texts, almost half the worldâ€™s population is addicted to it and this number is increasing day by day.

Bulk Sms altogether falls in a somewhat different category. These are the ones which are sent in large number mainly from an online portal for the promotional purposes of a company.

It is a well known fact that these SMSs are sent from a pc to a number of mobiles in a single mouse-click. The way it serves differs from company to company. Some use it for marketing purpose; others use it for alerting its customers while some others use it for spreading any kind of information. The quality of the system which serves as the messenger may also be tested in the case of the SMSs not getting delivered. Some cheap providers are also available in the market but the important decision rests on you on whether you want to use it because with price comes the quality of the service you are using.

The cheapest form of marketing which has been devised until now is bulk sms. It has been useful to many companies as they have been able to reach their clients or the prospective ones in time to continue their business transactions with them. With the help of the text from computer and the sms software they can contact their customers in a whisker of a second and thus mingle with their lives just through their mobile phones.

Share market updates, commodities alert etc. forms the basis for which bulk sms is used for alert purposes. These normally require faster service as the companies are in a hurry to reach their customers. Some of them term it as Premium Sms Services which consists of the ones which provide the service of sending text from computer. With this kind of service the companies are in a position to reach their customers without causing any disturbance to them and at the same time supplying them with the information. This information can now be checked by the customer at his own free time and made use of if necessary.

Classroom coaching centers are now a rage among many students. Some of these organizations can use bulk sms through the sms software available can contact their students and update them with information regarding the change in the time-table or an emergency change in the examination schedule. Though this practice is not much popular till now the way the market of bulk sms is growing it is no doubt just a matter of time before this comes of age. The market of bulk sms is ever-growing with new companies coming into the forefront with each passing day. As already said itâ€™s only up to their customers to decide whether they want to go with a cheap service or a premium one.
