Article Side
Unlocked Cell Phones - What Does it Mean? by Editor123

Article published on December 16th 2011 | Communication

Unlocking a cell phone does not simply mean that you have to put in your pass code to allow you to access your phone or keypad. Cell phones are usually locked when you purchase them so that they can only be used with a specific company, such as Verizon, AT&T, Sprint, or any other cell phone reseller in the world.

Most cellular phones are proprietary to an individual service provider, which usually means that your phone will not work if you try to change companies. It is "locked" to that provider, which means you can only use it if you are purchasing their service . In the event that you visit another country and try to use your phone on another carrier's service in that country, it will not work either. You are locked down again.

This is not a problem that cannot be overcome. Based upon the type of cell phone you have and who your carrier is, there is a chance that you can unlock your cell phone by using a cell phone unlock code. When you unlock cell phone, you then have the option to use your current phone on another carrier's service, change phone numbers and even your current account. Your phone is no longer locked to your original carrier or service provider.

Whether you are wondering if your cell phone can be unlocked, are not sure what a locked phone or cell phone unlock code is, or would like to know how to unlock your own phone, our articles can explain all of these issues to you. We can help you decide if unlocking your current phone is of any value to you, as well as explain the legal issues behind phone unlocking. Feel free to read our other articles on unlock cell phone for more information on how to use your locked phone with anyone you choose.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/communication-articles/unlocked-cell-phones-what-does-it-mean.htm - Article Side

Editor123 - About Author:
This article is contributed by a professional article writer and has been efficient in providing useful information about phone unlock codes, cell phone unlock codes. For more information about a phone unlocking, a how to unlock phone, you can visit: http://unlockthatphone.com

Article Keywords:
unlock cell phone,cell phone unlock code

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!