If you have a cell phone that you really like a lot, but are not happy with your current carrierâ€™s plan, or maybe have a phone that you obtained and would like to use it on you carrierâ€™s network, you may come up against the problem of a locked cell phone. A locked cell phone is one that has a SIM card installed that can be programmed to allow that phone to work on any other GSM type phone network. This is known as â€œunlocking a cell phoneâ€•. To do this, you need to obtain unlock codes fro a company that supplies them.

This process is as easy as going to UnlockThatPhone.com, entering the required information at the website, and following the online instruction guides to unlock your phone. It is easy enough for anyone that can operate a cell phone to do, and it does not take much time.

Simply go to the website and follow the onscreen prompts. First, find your phone. There is a dropdown list of carriers to choose from for an unlock code. Choose the one that you subscribe to. Next, select the manufacturer of your phone (ie. Blackberry, Nokia, HTC, etc.), and once you do that, select the model of the cell phone you wish to unlock. Be sure to enter the exact model of your phone, such as Bold, Bold 2, etc. Finally, obtain you phoneâ€™s IMEI number. This is found by entering #06# into your phone. The IMEI number will be displayed on your screen.

When you are ready to check out, choose your payment type, such as PayPal or credit or debit card. After the transaction has completed, you will receive your unlock codes via email. Follow the online instructions at the website to complete your cell phone unlocking process.

If you encounter any problems while you are using your unlock codes to unlock your cell phone, do not hesitate to contact customer service to receive help with phone unlocking. The customer service team at UnlockThatPhone.com will be ready to help with any phone unlocking problem you have.
