Killing Time with Free Online Games by EugeneYeng

Article published on December 1st 2011 | Computer

Whether our bosses like it or not, we all have a bit of downtime while sitting at our desks. Maybe you donâ€™t have downtime on the company clock, but when you are looking to kill a bit of time in the office, offerings like stick games provide the perfect, free online gaming solution. Those doodles that you make while talking to clients come to life with a new genre of gaming that is drawing quite a bit of interest from those surfing the internet looking for a way to release some stress. Because they are simple and many are hosted and run online, you are able to play them at will without ever downloading a program. Interested in finding some of these incredible games? They are very easy to find, and when you do, you may struggle to get away from them. Just rememberâ€¦we warned you.

Because there is such a vast array of games available to you, you are assured of finding something that falls into your interest range. Some of them will require some skill, so donâ€™t be discouraged if you find some that are hard to navigate at first. Using your mouse and a few keyboard arrows will handle just about every title you find, so obviously you wonâ€™t need any intricate hardware to get into the stick games mix. Just for fun, let us look at some of the ways you can improve your overall scores when playing games of this genre.

Repetition

Nothing increases your overall score like repetition. Just because a game is highly rated doesnâ€™t mean itâ€™s for you. But, if you give it a try and find it a bit complicated, stay at it. Usually, these games are favorites in the free online gaming community because they require a bit more skill than some of the others. Look for tips with other gamers if the website you are using has a community board or chat capabilities. This can help you improve your overall score and give you hours of entertainment.

Challenge Yourself

Too many times, we hear about gamers that stick to the same style of games. This is closing off a wide range of other games that you may enjoy even more than those that you have conquered. By working on titles that require some time to master, you are improving your game- play ability and allowing your skills to catch up to improvements that will be made on the game itself. Many times, these games evolve, and the gaming style is transferred to later renditions. Look at it like investing in your entertainment for future enjoyment.

Take Note of Who Creates the Games

There is a chance that you have fallen in love with a particular game developer. They use a certain control or graphic style that suits your needs. Paying attention to who is creating the games can help you find others that will fit your taste when searching for new titles to play. Stick games are created by thousands of game designers. When you find a particular developer that you enjoy, look for others that they have created. Though the controls may vary, you know that they enjoy the same gaming style that you do, so take the time to learn the new control implementation. This can also help as you follow the evolution of their free online offerings.

Stick games are popular, and because they wonâ€™t cost a dime to play, they are gaining momentum. Several of these are much more complicated than one would imagine, but if you are persistent and continually challenge your skills, you can improve your overall performance in any of the new releases. Remember, communities are forming on the developing or hosting websites, so create a profile, share your thoughts, and immerse yourself in the new trend that is entertaining millions!
