Article published on December 5th 2011 | Computer

There is no doubt in the fact that the crime ratio in societies has been reduced but a very devastating crime that is being committed is the online crime. No measures are being taken for online fraud prevention because it is such a practice where one does not get to know who is responsible for the act. This piece of writing will throw light on the ways for online fraud prevention.

One of the most common acts online is to hack email ids of people. What hackers do is that they send attractive emails to the ids of people that include some kind of offer or any once in a life time opportunity like working on million dollar job. These emails contain links that take people to a place from where all their personal information is hacked from their id. Once hackers get access to your account, they block them or change their passwords. They mostly close the email accounts of the users. You might be thinking that what the hackers will get by doing this. Well, this is the question whose answer is still unknown. Even though they do not get any money by committing this scam but still they enjoy it. The best way for online fraud prevention is to avoid opening unknown emails no matter how much you want. Delete the mails from the spam folder too. Stay away from trouble before it even reaches you. This is the best way to stay away from troubles.

This was the fraud that is done for entertainment but there is one more cyber crime that is committed for monetary motives. Hacking credit card information of people is one such way. These crimes are mostly committed on the business websites. If the credentials of the customers are frequently hacked from a website then that website will soon lose customers. The best way through which websites can save their websites from hackers is the online fraud prevention software. It can be called the best tool through which maximum security can be ensured for the customers. This an ideal way through which you can earn the trust of your customers.

Sentropi is known to be the online fraud prevention software which sounds useful for all the business websites that are working on the internet to carry out business transactions. This software will enable you to make your own rules for your websites which all customers have to follow. These rules will be made for the security of your customers. They will enable you to distinguish potential customers and the scammers. You can say that online fraud prevention is totally in your hands today. So do not waste much time and get this software for your website. Make rules like providing personal contact information. Ask for postal codes, phone number, address etc. if any of the customers refuses you to provide any such information, then it is a signal that he is a hacker. These are a few of the simple ways through which you can practice online fraud prevention.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/computer-articles/solution-for-online-crimes-and-frauds.htm - Article Side

Hemelwasen - About Author:
a Sentropi is one of the professional service providers that offer a chargeback fraud services and products. Sentropi is basically one of the latest products that ensure safety of web based systems by employing innovative ways of identifying and tracking technology

Article Keywords:
Sentropi , chargeback fraud ,chargeback management

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!