How much we may try, the truth is the cars eventually start to have problems either related to exterior or any interior part. But certain car tips can be followed to keep essential parts of the cars functional and well maintained. Check out such tips through this article.

Engine cooling system

Overheating of engine can cause serious damage to the vehicles. And this is something which you should consider in order to avoid other costs. For this, you need to check your coolant on regular basis so that the car can be taken to the service centre if any leak is found to this part.

Timing belts & spark plugs

Another essential tip is to check spark plugs and timing belt and keep changing them regularly to maintain the efficiency of the engine.

Tires

Pressure in tires should also be checked every month. Adding to it, the tires should be rotated and safe limit of tread wear should be checked because once the limit is passed, the tires are not safe and so it should be replaced.

Windshield replacement

One of the major tips is to maintain windshield of the cars. Windshields are the first to get damaged during any accident and it can be repaired or replaced by taking the car to any professional auto service centre. The centers follow a proper procedure to replace the broken or damaged windshield with the new one.

The experts first detach al the assembly including mirrors and wipers followed by covering the heating vents with paper or tape. Then they check the rubber gasket if it is damaged or just cracked. They separate the affected gasket from the glass and when the glass is separated from the frame, the new gasket is placed around the new windshield. They also make use of petroleum jelly on the outer side of the gasket to get it fixed properly.

Car windshield replacement is a job that takes some hours but is essential from the safety point of view. The repair work is much cheaper as compared to the replacement but is feasible for minimal damages.

Other than these four essential tips, some more tips like thorough check of oil, battery, brakes, air filters, clutch, regular service and much more are there which can be followed to prevent minor car problems from turning to expensive and major issues. In this regard, you need only to acquire assistance of an experienced and professional auto glass expert.
