

Article Side

Russian Women Dating – Things to Consider Lera Cupidonova

Article published on January 8th 2012 | Dating

A big percent of men engaged into Russian women dating are men over 50 years old. When a man of this age decides to look for a life time partner in CIS countries, in many cases he may face many disappointments and finally will come to the conclusion it is not possible to find a suitable woman because most of ladies seem to be interested in meeting men under 55 years old. In fact, it is not right. Giving it some patience, time and efforts, anyone can find a desired match.

If by chance you have ever read articles, books, tips and advises lists on online dating, all of them mention “realistic and true expectations”. What does it mean to have true and realistic expectations when you plan to try Russian women dating?

If you are serious about your search and you are looking for a woman to spend your life with, and not just a beautiful trophy to impress your friends and colleagues back home, one of the most important issues is the age of the lady you are looking for. Of course, it would flatter any man in his 50s when a 20-25 years old beauty answers his letter, but being honest and realistic, you should understand that chances for this type of relationship being long-term are really small. As we have already mentioned it, if you are searching for a life time partner, a person who can share your life experience, interests and points of view, you definitely should consider Russian women with age difference not bigger than 15 years older.

Another thing to think about is your woman’s life style preferences and expectations. If a lady is a city person, who actively participates in the city rich social life (night clubs, exhibitions, museums, concerts and so on), there is a tiny chance she will be happy living in a small town, on a farm or in the country. While communicating online, it is great to talk about last movie you saw or your favorite songs, but it is very important to learn about each other’s plans, interests, life priorities, likes and dislikes and how each of you sees his or her future life in the marriage.

Women in Russia value financial security and stability, just like we all do. Saying this, we do not mean you can buy a Russian wife with your fancy car or your big house. Writing to a Russian lady, you should write not only about material things you can offer, but what is much more important, the good qualities of your character and personality that will make you sound attractive as a potential match. Prove you can respect her, that you can be considerate and romantic, that you know what is needed to build a strong and happy marriage, and that you are able to value what a woman can offer.

You do not have to be a professional writer to attract Russian women attention. Being open minded, honest, positive, sincere and true is the perfect way to lay the foundation for any kind of relationship.

Article Source:

<http://www.articleside.com/dating-articles/russian-women-dating-things-to-consider.htm> - Article Side

Lera Cupidonova - About Author:

Register for free and browse personals ads of marriage minded a Russian women , Ukraine and Asian girls

Article Keywords:

Russian women, Russian girls

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!