Understanding the dynamics of attraction is important before you can even think of learning the real seduction techniques. Attraction is not a matter of choice it is a completely involuntary reaction. It happens when Mother Nature takes over our minds and heart long enough for us to mate with someone who can give our progeny strong enough genes.

Unfortunately, attraction never stays steady. It increases or decreases depending on how two people act or react to each other. So unless you handle it right, any attraction that hot and sexy blond is feeling for you at the moment, is going to be diminished.

While itâ€™s natural to assume that women would feel attracted towards guys who shower them with attention and compliments, buy them dinner and expensive gifts, follow them around like love sick puppies but unfortunately, it does not work this way. Women run in the opposite direction when they encounter guys who act like wussy bags. If you constantly seek approval, act clingy or go out of your way to be "nice", more often than not, it will backfire. If she wonâ€™t run away from you, itâ€™s because she is going for shoe shopping with you and be ready to foot the bill.

Sad part is that many guys are conditioned to behave like wussy by default when they meet a beautiful woman who they feel attracted for. Add nervous body language to this wussy mode and you have the perfect recipe for creating impossible-to-overcome barrier between you and creating attraction.

Creating strong first impression is perhaps the most important seduction technique. In fact, first meeting is the best time to create the attraction. Beautiful women are so used to getting attention and having guys hanging around that anything that sets you apart from others is going to get their attention. If you can make her curious about you, creating attraction is not at all difficult from that point.
