A Leisurely Holiday in Torrox by Nancy Gallen

Article published on August 6th 2012 | Destinations

Tourists who are seeking a relaxing holiday would not be disappointed in Torrox as the pace of living is slow and easy. It may be a small village on Costa del Sol in Spain but it packs a punch in terms of living and holiday.

Lifestyle

Life in this quaint town of Torrox centers around its main plaza called Plaza de la Constitucion. This beautiful square has orange trees lined with a water fountain as its centerpiece. The orange trees exude a sweet fragrance with soothing bubbling sounds of water gushing from the fountain giving rise to a most tranquil ambience to the surroundings. This makes a great place for the locals and tourists to relax with the myriad of restaurants and bars for a drink and a taste of some fine local cuisine.

Locals love to congregate here to enjoy the peaceful atmosphere with good company while exchanging the local and foreign news. Many just laze around to watch the world go by for the day while enjoying the orange fragrance in the air while sipping their coffee or cool beer.

Beach fun

At the other side of town is Torrox Costa where one can enjoy a lovely promenade that offers a myriad of restaurants, souvenir shops and bars across the golden sands of Costa del Sol. This spot is particularly crowded in the summer with lots of water activities such as snorkeling, scuba diving, jets skiing, boating and fishing.

In the summer evenings, many interesting stalls line the promenade displaying their goods of ceramics, leather and textiles.

The temperature in Torrox can soar to 40 degrees Celsius in the summer or drop to the 20s with cool breeze; one would enjoy the opportunity of a fantastic tan on an inviting sun lounge under the sun. There are plenty of caf   bars to hang out at until sunset where most patrons would be found at the myriad of pubs and discotheques that would open.

Torrox Pueblo

This quaint little village lies close to the beach with a beautiful snow peaked mountain as its background although there is no snow in Torrox. This makes it one of Europe   s favorite holiday destinations with sun and fun all year long.

For those who want tranquility and a relaxing holiday, Torrox is the best choice. One can laze around all day long with a vibrant nightlife along the coast from sunset.

Life is slow in this small town of Torrox where one can relax and enjoy life leisurely taking time to smell the roses or orange blooms that line the town square.
