Article Side

Floating Markets â€“ Must-visit Attractions of Thai Kingdom

By Aanchal Gupta

Article published on February 20th 2012 | Destinations

What floating market means is a marketplace adjacent to a body of water. Here, goods are sold directly through boats. Thailand, a Southeast Asian nation has an extensive network of canals, and perhaps thatâ€™s why the country was once known as the Venice of Asia. On the banks of these waterways, people sell goods directly from their boats. Traditionally it was a normal way of life, but today these markets have turned into a novelty form of entertainment.

Floating markets are located all through the Thai Kingdom. They are extremely popular both among the locals and the tourists. Varieties of goods ranging from foods to fruits and random trinkets are sold here directly in canals. They are really amazing to get through and offer some of best local items. Apart from that, you can also navigate the market on your personal boat tour. In fact, visiting these markets is one of the attractions a Thailand tour has to offer. Following are some of Thailandâ€™s popular floating markets worth your time.

Amphawa: This is perhaps the most-visited floating market in Thailand. On weekends, the entire neighborhood community turns into a Disneyland frequented by tons of people. Away from Bangkokâ€™s bustling & modern lifestyle, people come here to savor a great atmosphere and delicious foods which are served from boats. The parking lots of boats and the way sellers serve food are truly enticing, especially for first-time visitors. So, during your next visit to Bangkok, donâ€™t forget to visit this amazing marketplace.

Damnoen Saduak: This floating market is located at Ratchaburi Province about 1.5 hours from Bangkok. The canal where the market sits connects the Mae Klong River with the Tacheen River. The traditional way of selling goods is quite alluring to both locals and foreigners. On weekends, you can the massive crowds selling purchasing foods, fruits and other local items. Visit to this market is really a worthwhile trip.

Khlong Lat Mayom: This popular marketplace is not so much rowdy but quite popular among the tourists. Endowed with green trees, cool shades and a much more relaxing environment, Khlong Lat Mayom is quite impressive. Like many other floating markets, it also takes place at weekends and public holidays, and remains active from 8am to 5pm. The market is divided into portions, and has many stalls selling goods of varied range.

Bang Nam Phueng: Located in a farming community of Phra Pradaeng, only a short drive from Bangkok, this is an ideal retreat for those seeking escape from busy city life. This market is quite large and has a large of number of stall catering the local people and the tourists alike. Someone on a Bangkok tour must visit this market that is really a paradise for food lovers and peace seekers.

Chan Floating Market: Famous for its fresh selection seafood, this market is held at weekends just in front of the Taling Chan District Office. Once a small shopping place for the locals, this market has now gained a huge popularity among tourists who wish to discover the traditional Thai way of selling. Visit to this market on Saturday, and you see a huge crowd selling or purchasing a wide selection of fresh fruits, vegetables, flowers and local ornaments.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/destinations-articles/floating-markets-must-visit-attractions-of-thai-kingdom.htm - Article Side

Aanchal Gupta - About Author:
Writer of this article is associated with Hungry Bags, a reliable source to get your customized travel deals for a Bangkok tour package and a travel in Pattaya. With your suited a tour package to Bangkok, you can enjoy your Bangkok trip to the maximum.

Article Keywords:
Bangkok tour package, tour package to Bangkok, travel in Pattaya

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!