After you've chosen a hotel in Lancaster PA, like the Fulton Steamboat Inn, it's time to head out and have some fun! There are a lot of attractions to see in the state, like Central Park, and you probably won't get to experience even a quarter of them if you're only staying for a few days. In fact, you'll probably have a difficult time choosing between the options that you have.

If you're looking for free things to do with the family, then you should definitely consider checking out Marsh Creek State Park. You'll find yourself surrounded by beautiful scenery, water and fascinating wildlife. The only expense that you would have to pay is the gas that it takes to get there. Of course, you may also want to have a picnic at the park, in which case you would have to pay for the supplies for that, as well. That being said, your picnic would still end up being much cheaper than admission to some of the other attractions in the area â€“ especially if you are traveling with a large family.

If your hotel in Lancaster Pennsylvania is close to Hershey Park, then you will have more activities that you can handle at your disposal. For example, there are all kinds of fun rides and shops to check out at the park, and you will also be next door to Hershey Gardens. Your hotel in Lancaster, PA, will also put your right next a relatively large zoo, and quite a few fine-dining opportunities. Some of the rides at the park are not suitable for young children, so keep that in mind before you go. However, many of the attractions inside the park are very family oriented, so you should be able to find suitable alternatives to the rides that you cannot go on.

When you're having a difficult time finding something that younger kids can enjoy outside of the hotel in Lancaster, PA, then ZooAmerica is your answer! There are daily activities, performances and many different animal species to see. In fact, you'll probably enjoy your visit just as much as the kids do! Currently, they have some new baby animals on display, and a nice petting zoo area, which will definitely interest younger children. This is a great way to mix education and fun together while you're on vacation.
