Bucket List Nation, a travel website that features places to go, came from the desire of two girls, and now the head editors at the website, to travel the world and do as many different, quirky things as possible. The site was inspired from the movie The Bucket List, but the girls decided to take it a step further with each having a list of over a 1000 things to do and place to go in their individual bucket lists. They want to travel the world and tackle the things on their lists, sharing their stories along the way, be it visiting Venice during the Carnival or going on a ghost hunting expedition or try and find the Green Sand Beach in Hawaii.

Not only does the website have bucket list travels to share with its readers but it also gives them a chance to connect with other travel bloggers from all over the world and the site already is a host to several writers who have shared their unique travel guides, which is what makes it different and interesting. Everything covered on the website is firsthand information by one of the writers and the content and pictures are original. The emphasis is on getting quality pictures that show the vibrancy of any place, because ultimately the aim of the website is to inspire people to go out and tackle things on their own bucket list.

The website covers off the beaten path city guides, places to travel to, and place to go in India that make for an interesting read. A recently covered article, LA city guides , is a great example that showed how much the city has to offer beyond Hollywood. City guides are frequently covered on the site, and the LA city Guide is just one of many to come. Visitors that need inspiration on place to travel to can visit the bucket list, city guides, travel inspiration, or travel guide sections.

Bucket List Nation is also excited to be find places to travel to this year. One of the editors has moved back to India and will be covering place to go in India and place to travel to nearby. All of the items will be part of her master bucket list travel plan but she will help inspire others by sharing city guides and places to go for a newcomer to India.

Ultimately, bucket list travel will always be featured on Bucket List Nation, but city guides will be featured frequently. The other head editor will remain in LA to create the ultimate LA City Guides and feature place to travel to in California. One of her favorite place to go in the city is on a hike to the Hollywood sign, which she crossed off her bucket list.

Keep reading Bucket List Nation this year, as the girls continue to share bucket list inspiration, city guides, place to go, and place to travel to in India. You are sure to find bucket list travel inspiration as well as unique place to go whether you are looking to explore your hometown or going on a huge journey.
