Shopping in the Political Powerhouse of Washington DC by Aron Howard

Article published on May 9th 2012 | Destinations

Most people associate Washington DC with the Capitol, politicians and lobbyists. However, the shopping in the city is out of this world, with its numerous retail stores, such as Gap, Barnes & Noble, Best Buy and Old Navy. In addition, the city is dotted with fantastic shopping venues and distinctive stores that add further appeal to the city. Taking flights to Washington DC assure visitors of an unforgettable shopping experience.

Georgetown is the perfect area for shopping, dining and nightlife. While the shops here are popular with the younger generation, there are many antique stores and boutiques which are worth checking out. The best shops are located on Wisconsin Avenue and M Street. You can also visit an indoor mall called the Shops at Georgetown Park. The mall boasts of over 100 stores and eating places.

Buying cheap tickets to Washington DC means that you will have more money to spend when you go on a shopping spree at Dupont Circle. The area is popular for its boutiques, gift shops, art galleries and bookstores. Close to Dupont Circle is Connecticut Avenue, where you can pick up clothing items from Burberryâ€™s, Gap, Brooks Brothers and Talbots.

Flight tickets cheap and reasonable are available through different airlines and travel agencies. You can also pick them up from online travel agencies. When you do this, you will be able to visit the numerous museums located at Penn Quarter. In addition, you can shop in some trendy shops, such as Ann Taylor, Urban Outfitters, Jos A. Bank Clothiers, Pottery Barn and H&M. You can catch a movie here or visit the beautiful contemporary restaurants in the area.

Cheap flights to Washington DC can end up giving you a surprise while you roam the city. One of the best places to buy fresh produce is the Eastern Market. Yes, the city is not all about politics and politicians. The market is a farmerâ€™s market where you can pick up the freshest of cheeses, dairy products, meats, fish, poultry, baked food, delicatessen and also flowers. However, if you visit the market on Saturday, you will get a good bargain on the arts and craft on display. Sunday is the day to head to the market to pick up collectibles, art, antiques and imported goods. This market is located on Capitol Hill and worth a visit, especially at weekends.

If you like, you can also head for some sensational shopping experience across the border to Maryland and Virginia. In fact, just bordering the city and Maryland is a trendy and upscale shopping area called Chevy Chase. You can shop for the latest fashion here and also buy luxury items at the Chevy Chase Pavilion. In Old Town Alexandria in Virginia, you can buy jewelry, art, antiques and souvenir. So when you buy cheap flight tickets to the city, you will not only get a chance to experience the best shopping areas of Washington DC, but also along its borders.
