Rome, the capital of Italy, has too many attractions to its credit. The most popular being the Pantheon, which is located in the central district of the city. Of course, there is the Vatican and the famous St. Peterâ€™s Square that is a must-see when you visit the city. The beauty of the Vatican cannot be expressed in words. It has to be seen to be appreciated. The artistic beauty of the Sistine Chapel and the sprawling gardens and water features in the city are awe-inspiring.

Getting cheap flights to Rome also mean visiting the famous and beautiful Trevi Fountain. The fountain is located at one end of the ancient Roman aqueduct, which was constructed in 19 BC. According to legends, if people throw a coin into the fountain, they are bound to return to the city.

Another place that should not be missed when visiting the city is the Spanish Steps. This is home to the Colosseum, which was built on the orders of Emperor Vespasian more than 1,399 years ago. Use your holiday as an opportunity to visit The Castel Sant Angelo. This structure was actually built to be a mausoleum for Emperor Hadrian, but was used to house popes and also used as a prison.

The city offers a vibrant shopping, dining and drinking experience. After seeing some of the important sights of the city, you can indulge in some retail therapy. If you are looking for fashion, head to Viadel Corso where you will find three roads, namely Via Condotti, Via Borgognona and Via Frattina. Out of these, Via Condotti is the place to find high-end brands, such as Bulgari, Hermes and Cartier. Traditional Roman shops are available in many streets located in the old city center. Here you can pick up vases, painted ceramics, furniture and other wickerwork household items.

The nightlife in the city is rich and varied, with enough bars and clubs dotting Testaccio district. Most of them have an in-house DJ or live music to keep your toes tapping until the wee hours of the morning.

Rome is an easy destination to reach. It is connected to the rest of the world by several international airlines. People coming from North America for a thrilling shopping holiday can fly into the city using US Airways, while those flying in from the UK can use British Airways. So basking in Italian hospitality and enjoying the history and culture of city is never an issue. There are many budget airlines that connect the city to other European cities and the rest of the world. Hence, getting cheap tickets to Rome to see the beautiful sights and attractions and then spending some time shopping will never be a problem.

Most international flights to Rome land at the main airport called Fiumicino Leonardo da Vinci. From here, you can reach the Roma Termini station using the Leonardo Express train or the metro. Regardless of whether you have come into the city on cheap airline flights or an expensive one, you will find endless places to visit. Perhaps, the city is the perfect destination for some great sightseeing and relaxation.
