The Hotels in Darjeeling by Yogita Bali

Article published on January 17th 2012 | Destinations

There are times when you have to let go of the past and give your relationship a new dimension. When instead of cribbing about your own pains and crying over spilt milk, you need to place yourself in the other personâ€™s shoes. When sparing a thought and understanding how the person on the other side feels is of utmost importance. When you need to decipher what might be his or her problems and how fate has played its tricks on the mortal soul. And how the helpless soul has tried to fight back and set things right from the derailed track. There are moments when you got to think of ways of how you could have given yourself a chance to stand by that person who needed you the most.

A sabbatical to treasure the moments of life

Moments. That is all we have, to spend with our near and dear ones. And when life throws you at situations like these, when the mind is weary and bogged down answering the questions of life, it is only time to take a sabbatical and travel to a place that would provide you with the perfect setting to spend some time with yourself, when you can take your loved ones, understand them better and make together times truly wonderful. So that it can help you breathe life into your relationship and bring alive its missing charm.

A short trip to revive the lost glory

A short trip to recreate the sense of understanding between the two individuals is often advised to all those who are at loggerheads with each other (ignoring the fact that they love each other like crazy). And what can be a better place than the mighty queen of the hills herself? What can be more warm than the loving and hospitable people of Darjeeling? What can provide more solace and privacy than the pristine hotels in Darjeeling that are cradled in the lap of nature and cocooned in the unparallel beauty of the hills?

Hotels Darjeeling India

Many of the hotels in Darjeeling, India, feature in the top list of hotels in the country and whenever someone tries to find a good hotel in India to look forward to a rich and rewarding experience, he inevitably bumps into one that belongs to the hill station. Such is the beauty of Darjeeling. Such is the power of the mountains, such is its enviable grace.
