The Several Options for Accommodation by Roger Nash

Article published on February 2nd 2012 | Destinations

When you visit the Caribbean islands, like that of Puerto Rico, one of the most important considerations is that of accommodations. If you are worried about where you are going to stay then know that there are more than 12,000 hotel rooms in various denominations spread all over Puerto Rico. Many of them are are in the San Juan area and are a sight to behold.

If you are one of those travelers for whom brand matters the most, then Puerto Rico has all the major hospitality brands as well. The best of services is available even in the most humble of properties here. Again, it is the San Juan area where you will find most of them and one issue is that they are almost always full and so making your booking well in advance is a good idea. Wintertime is when most of the rooms get full. One saving grace is that there are a number of hospitality properties on the horizon now.

You will find all the best of international hotel brands here such as that of Sheraton, Westin and Marriott. You will also find the Hilton, Ritz-Carlton as well as the Holiday Inn. There are several other luxurious properties as well as resorts around that you can choose from. One upcoming trend in Puerto Rico, as far as hospitality goes, is the increase in the number of boutique hotels. The assurance is that the experience will be great and the service top-notch. Every one of the cities in Puerto Rico has a great property for you to choose from.

Besides hotel rooms there are several other properties that one can think of renting or leasing as well, depending on how long you plan to stay. These can be quiet home or service apartments that you can call your own. In the long term, they work out cheaper and allow you to enjoy the city at your own pace. Again, most of the good properties are in San Juan. Almost everything is walking distance and you donâ€™t really have to worry about the safety factor as tourists are up and about all day and you will have constant companionship on the road. If you are opting for such properties, do ensure that you get a reliable person to make your bookings so that you are not stranded on arrival.
