If you are looking for some perfect destination during your India trip than Goa is the perfect beach is perfect for you. Its tranquil atmosphere sure to give you piece of mind. Goa is home to world best beaches, coconut palms, seafood, along with the beautiful scenery historical monuments, lush green hills, dense mango and crystal river waters.

Goa is different from other cities in India, which allows visitors to embrace the lazy sun-drenched beaches of a rich history to explore. The best time to visit Goa is November to February, when it is a comfortable temperature. From June to September is the rainy season, however, remains a wonderful time to visit, as rain is not constant but helps provide a little cooler temperature.

If you want make a trip to Goa and not going for Ayurveda Treatment in Kerala during different Hindu festivals and celebrations, then you must book your trip in January, February and March. In January, Prasanna Shantadurga held in February, while you may enjoy the three day festival of Shri Mangesh Zatra or wait until March to visit during the festival of Holi called Shigmo.

After sunbathing on the beach, you may wish to see some of the sights. Some of the most famous places are namely Panaji Vagator and Chapora Old. The capital of Goa Panaji is one of the most beautiful cities in fact in India that offers Latin-style houses with red roofs, stunning gardens, and the most impressive Laigo do Igreja Church Square with a straight white balustrade. Thus a visit to old Goa is must during your India trip to Goa.

8 kms from Panaji is old Goa, which is the spiritual heart of the area. Here you will feel about the story to see Portuguese churches that stand as milestones in the history of Christianity in India. Old Goa is home to several wonderful museums including the Archaeological Museum and Portrait Gallery to be noted.

Another major tourist destination of the majestic beach country is Vagator & Chapora in the beautiful long coastline that is dotted with all kinds of attractions. Vagator has several large ranches, and a large spa. Middle Vagaor is known by locals on the beach in Tel Aviv. Chota Vagator is the place for action. Disco Valley here and party place, so you can come down and dance the night away. In the far north of Vagator, you will see the ruins of Chapora Fort Tower overlooking the Chapora River and beach.

A beach that is well worth visiting is the Anjuna beach. The beach is long and is divided into three sections. Here you will find a wide range of things to do to enjoy the different cuisines, such as food shacks to visit the Temple Laxminarayan, along with a flea market that has all sorts of goodies and fun stuff I find. Resort in Goa is famous worldwide. There are many beautiful resorts facing sea side.
