Valencia - the Amazing Nightlife by Frederick Pollard

Article published on July 2nd 2012 | Destinations

Valencia has a lot of things to offer to all visitors coming here. The nightlife of the city is one of the features that make it unique. The city simply comes to life when the sun sets and you will get all the entertainment that you need here. This is one thing that you can never afford to miss out on while you are in the city for a holiday.

La Movida or movement is the nightlife in Valencia taking place on Friday evening through to Sunday morning. It is one of those events or nightlife activities that never end. La Movida is most ideal for people who are ready to enjoy without sleeping limits. You might need to ensure that you are in great shape before taking part in the La Movida as it can be vigorous and tiresome.

Young people looking for fun in Valencia are better off in regions such as Avenida de Aragon, Juan Llorens, El Carmen and Canovas. These areas flock with locals and they are therefore great avenues to have some fun and at the same time make friends. Students are in huge numbers in these areas and they are attracted most by the old tradition as well as the fun that comes with wearing those medieval gowns and singing the night away in the local spots.

The visitors coming to Valencia and who would rather be in discotheques should be in regions such as Avenida, Viveros, Avenida Primado and Blasco Ibanez. The areas are almost close to the Barcelona exit and they have lots of entertainment to offer through the night. They are some of the best places to sing and enjoy some cool music and drink the night away with friends or those newly acquired friends.

La Playa is another great avenue for some night fun. Also meaning the beach, the ambience is simply breathtaking. You will find numerous restaurants and bars in the Avenida de Neptuno harbor from where you will get the chance to have all the fun that you could be looking for. The restaurants come complete with very nice terraces especially for summer. From these beautiful terraces you will have a wonderful view of the Cabanal Malvarrosa beach which also offers a view of the beautiful Valencia gulf. Young people are also in plenty making the place even livelier. It is one of the best places that you can choose to drag the night away in fun.
