The city of Jaipur is a wonderful city in India. It is also known as the pink city, which is due to the many pink color buildings in the city. Jaipur has lot of things to offer to tourist. There are many sites of attractions and one such enchanting place is the Vidhadhar Garden. One of the main purposes for building this garden was to bring greenery in the land, and also for being a source of refreshment and relief to the royal family members. Initially, this place of the garden was used for growing grapes. Then it was transformed in to the garden and turned into a totally splendid place. During your Rajasthan Tours never forget to visit this fabulous Garden.

Vidhadhar Garden is located adjacent to Jaipur, located about seven kilometers to the east of the city. This garden is very close to another beautiful place called the Sisodia Garden, which was built in honor of the chief architect of Jai Singh. Vidhadhar Garden was constructed in honor of the planner of the city of Jaipur, who was Vidhadhar Bhattacharjee.

Till today, this garden is one of the most magnificent gardens, and as well this is one of the best preserved gardens in the city of Jaipur. The garden is entirely filled with beauty. There are the beautiful fountains, pool and a lot of other associated features which there should be present in a royal resort.

This garden was created in a much planned manner. Plans of the Vidyadhar Garden were made following the norms of the ancient Indian architecture. The person to whom this was dedicated was the planner of the city of Jaipur, and when this garden was being created the same rules of architecture were followed as Vidyadhar followed them during his planning of Jaipur city.

The location of the garden is in such a place where it is a bit dry, and dessert type area. Because of the garden now there are many water courses that has given a total new look to the city. This garden with lot of greenery actually fills the mind of the people of Jaipur with peach and tranquility. It is located in a valley between two hills, which further adds a lot of natural beauty to it. Vidyadhar is filled with lots of colorful flowering plants, large trees which provide shade, and beautiful fountains. All these add to the beauty of the Vidyadhar Garden in the Majestic Jaipur city.
