The name of Moscow has been derived from the river Moskva that meanders close to this city. The city is known as a center of economy, religion, art and culture. The city is famous for a wide variety of reasons. During cold war, the city was popular for altogether different reasons. Today, the city has left behind the oppressive rule and ushered into a new era. Several flights to Moscow are offered by leading carriers. People visit this city not only for business but also for pleasure purposes. Plane tickets are readily available, and it is advisable to get airline tickets booked well in advance.

The city is dotted with several World Heritage Sites. These sites draw a large number of tourists to the city.

Red Square

The most prominent area in the city is the Red Square. It is at this place several notable historical sites are located. For past six centuries, these sites have gained a reputation of reflecting the rich culture and history of this destination. As a visitor enters the site, a gate can be seen that is referred to as the Resurrection Gate. Just past this gate, St. Basilâ€™s Cathedral is located. This Cathedral is truly an architectural jewel. It was constructed in the 16th century, and it has remained the site of religion since then.

Lobnoye Mesto

This is the site where erstwhile rulers or the Tsars used to make historical announcements. The location is right opposite to the St. Basil Cathedral. Some executions or public hanging were also carried out here. It is thrilling to see this place. A sense of mystique surrounds the place, and if one concentrates enough, an eerie feeling can be experienced. Today, the place is no longer the same as many new buildings have come up but still it is an experience none would forget for as long time. Close to this venue, there is a shopping area. Visitors love to shop at the gigantic GUM Department Store. This store is considered to be one of the most popular shopping areas in the city. The arcade is very close to the Red Square. The face of the city has changed drastically, and the vestiges of communism are nowhere to be seen. Countless gleaming shops on all four sides with a center in between displays a variety of products both, locally manufactured as well as branded. If visitors get tired with relentless sightseeing and shopping, they can relax in cafes located here.

Moscow Kremlin

The seat of power or the government, Kremlin is another venue that must be visited by every visitor coming through cheap flights to Moscow. Close to this place, there are many cathedrals and buildings of historical importance like the Cathedral of Assumption, Ivan the Great Bell Tower, and many others.

The State Armory

This is a very old museum that displays regal treasures and several other notable artifacts. Visitors can see all these attractions, but they just need to book cheap tickets to Moscow and enjoy an incredible vacation!
