Visit to the city of Agra by Alice Brown

Article published on December 3rd 2011 | Destinations

Agra, a city in India can be considered as one of the most splendid city in the world. This is mainly because of the symbolic structure Taj Mahal, which was built by the Mughal King Shah Jahan as a tribute to her dearest wife Mumtaz. It was built over a span of twenty two years and a total of about twenty thousand workers were engaged during the whole span of the work. It is constructed by white marble. Taj Mahal has been a source of inspiration for poets, writers, artists, singers and many more. Situated at the bank of the river Yamuna, is it one of the magnificent structures on the surface of the earth.

It is found in the history why this Taj Mahal was constructed. Mumtaz died while giving birth to the fourteenth child. Before she passed away, she placed a request to Shah Jahan to build a monument which would represent how much his love was. That is why; Shah Jahan constructed the whole structure with his efforts for over two decades.

For visitors, they consider it to be incomplete if they have not paid a visit to the Taj Mahal. In fact, this is one of the top most locations for tourists. People are attracted to the unique beauty of the structure and as get fascinated by the stories of love between Shah Jahan and his beloved wife Mumtaz. The white marble structure catches the attention of anyone who enters in to the place. The walls are gorgeously decorated with Persian designs and there are the verses of the Quran engraved on the marble. This remains the centre of attraction for couples especially for those who have just recently married. They get a whole lot of inspiration by visiting the Taj Mahal.

Some people say that the beauty of the place increase further if one notices it during the full moon. Thus, tourists who come here hardly miss this opportunity to visit Taj Mahal India during this time. People who have interest in painting, writings, photography, and as well for architects a visit would be fulfilling the heart. Tourists can find a lot of holiday packages for Agra tour. This would as well include other famous places, though Taj Mahal is something that should not be missed at all. One can not only see the structure, but as well get to learn about the history and the architecture of the place.
