

Article Side

Are You Looking for Tips for to Help with Literature Review? by Donna Santos

Article published on April 27th 2012 | Education

Usually the students wonder about how to write a literature review and are in dire need of help with literature review writing.

The structure and layout of a literature review vary greatly diverging from one area of study to another and even due to the differing missions of every research.

It is difficult to measure the reliability and authenticity of the resources used for collecting data.

It is one of the most challenging tasks as it requires the assessment of sources and the availability of information on the internet makes the process more difficult.

The search engines do not identify the eminence of the search results, except the SEO feature of the article.

This is the reason it really is better to begin the search in college libraries.

Tips for the selection of sources

â€¢ The easiest literature review help is always to inspect the material, by using the abstract and introduction of the paper that will help you in selection of article.

It will help to remove the particular non-relevant and low-quality content.

â€¢ If it rings bells, then there could be something off the beam in your literature review, as well as the quality of the paper is also in trouble.

Be cautious of not moving towards the rejection of the study just because that your review of the literature be at odds with your hypothesis.

Unable in achieving this can entirely invalidate the literature review and will even weaken the research study.

â€¢ The subsequent step is to analytically assess the articles for review and then determine if your work is adequate enough to finalize.

Usually, students find think that a lengthy bibliography improves the quality research paper.

However, in reality, it is preferred to form a short list of quality bibliography than from citing irrelevant sources.

â€¢ Test the credentials of the sources that are of great importance for your literature review references.

The credibility of the sources also depends on the University reputation as well as the experience of the researcher.

If you find too many of materials with the same name then it means the source is reliable.

â€¢ Find out the conformity of content.

A research must be authentic enough to be replicated by other researchers to draw similar findings that make the study validate and safe to use.

If you find the course of literature review challenging, then don't hesitate to seek help from your advisor.

They are aware of the right and reliable sources to refer to.

Performing a sound literature review is affected by the experience that one has.

Even the expert researchers often wonder about need help with literature review writing as they fail to incorporate strong evidences and data in support of their research hypothesis.

It is a scientific method that is not very challenging if the researcher succeeds in locating authentic sources for data collection

Article Source:

<http://www.articleside.com/education-articles/are-you-looking-for-tips-for-to-help-with-literature-review.htm> - Article Side

Donna Santos - About Author:

Donna Santos is a senior research writer and provides help for a literature review help and a Help with literature review. Feel free to contact for any sort of help in this regard.

Article Keywords:

Help with literature review, literature review help

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!