Basic Interview Questions and Answers by William Borg

Article published on February 1st 2012 | Education

Interviews are often pre-planned. There are some basic interview questions common to every interview. The interviewer needs to answer them with utmost care. Here is the list of some of the most basic questions with their answers.

Well, tell me a little about yourself.

This is the most basic question, which looks easy at first sight. But, itâ€™s not so. You have to impress the interviewer by just giving him a snapshot of your education, interests and current career situation. You are not supposed to talk about your life. Always remember, the answer of this question sets the stage.

What attracted you to this job or why do you want this job?

Again, this looks a very easy question to answer but be careful. Explain the reason why you are here and why you find this job lucrative. Praise the company but do not overstate.

Why should we hire you?

Stay positive here. Do not hesitate to say that you are the best person for this job and you want to advance in your life. State some additional qualities you possess, what makes you different and suitable for the job.

Why did you leave your last job?

Take this question as the most important. This is the question that would decide you will be hired or not. If you fall in the temptation and start complaining about your previous job, you are not going to be hired anyway. Answer this with some diplomacy. Like, â€œyes, I had some minor problem with my previous but then it happens with everybody. You can disagree on someoneâ€™s views but that needs to be resolved.â€•

Can you work in a team?

Almost every person answers this in the same way and i.e. â€˜yesâ€™. You would also be saying the same. But the question is not only to be answered in yes or no. Give them some example of your role as team player so that you can prove yourself as a team player.

So, tell me about your long-term objective if we give you job.

State something positive here. For example, â€˜I would like to be one of the best and responsible employees of this company.â€™

What do you know about this industry or this company?

Generally, this question is asked to test that you have done your homework or not. You are supposed to know something about the company or the industry. The latest development in the industry, if there is any, you should be aware of that. If some renowned persons are working in the company, you are expected to know their name and their achievement.

Would you like to ask anything about the company or us?

This is another basic question of an interview. Your answer should be â€˜yesâ€™. Ask something related t the company. It would make them feel that you are eager to work with the company. For example, where does the company stand in the market?

It is well known that practice makes a man perfect. You can definitely get success in any job interview by practicing basic interview questions to every question, given above.
