Chicago Residents Choose a Two Year Business Degree

by William Hauselberg

Article published on January 4th 2012 | Education

If you are thinking about starting a prestigious career in business in Chicago, consider the benefits of a two year business degree. In half the time it takes to complete a bachelorâ€™s program, you can be on the fast track to success with a two year business degree. Not only will a two year degree have you in the field in a fraction of the time, you will complete the program at a fraction of the cost, as well. A two-year program also offers convenience through part-time, day and evening classes that can easily fit your schedule. Whether you are a recent high school graduate or are looking to start fresh on a new career path, a two year business degree may be perfect for you.

Study What's Relevant to Your Future Career

A well-rounded two year business degree program in Chicago through a licensed, accredited institution will prepare you for a variety of careers. In addition to accounting, the coursework required of a two year business degree is tailored to industry standards, preparing students for immediate employment in exciting and prestigious industries. Chicago business classes include studies on professional development, computer applications, financial services, office management, business concepts and customer service. Because the coursework is so much more specialized and focused, holding a two year business degree will make you more employable and offer you an added degree of job security in Chicago.

Prepare for a Possible Four Year degree

Education through a two year degree program also gives students an edge should they choose to pursue a Bachelorâ€™s degree later down the road. The specialized skills and education required for a two year degree not only help students make a more informed decision when choosing a major, but these students are often given preference during the admissions process. Research has also shown that students who hold a two year degree are more likely to successfully complete a Bachelorâ€™s program than other students.

A Chicago business certificate can open the door to a number of careers in the city. A two year business degree can give you the skills you need for a position as an office manager overseeing all the day to day operations of a company. Individuals with a passion for accounting can find careers in bookkeeping or as an accounting, payroll or billing clerk. A two year business degree can also open up opportunities in banking, insurance and real estate.

No matter what industry you choose, a two year business degree can put you on the path to success in Chicago.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/education-articles/chicago-residents-choose-a-two-year-business-degree.htm - Article Side

William Hauselberg - About Author:
The author has an immense knowledge on a Chicago business classes. Know more about a Chicago business certificate related info in his website.

Article Keywords:
Chicago business classes, Chicago business certificate

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!