Article published on December 13th 2011 | Education

Aarushâ€™s Aunt landed up at Hyderabad to celebrate her nephewâ€™s 5th birthday. She would be seein him after a span of 5 years and knowing her nephews love for chocolates, was loaded with different bands of chocolates for him and the family. She couldnâ€™t stop herself when she saw little Aarush at the airport. She bent and took out a chocolate bar from her bag. Aarush put out his little hand and took it. Everybody watched as the child peeled the wrapper off but the moment Aarushâ€™s mother saidâ€ Aarush, share it with auntyâ€•, he ran away â€œ. Such is the love children have for chocolates.

The response is much the same with adults too. The king of candy, the word "chocolate" was adopted into the English language from the Spanish vocabulary. The history of how the word came into Spanish is less sure, and there are numerous challenging explanations of it. Possibly the most suitable explanation is that the word "chocolate" has come from Nahuatl, the language of the Aztecs. Child specialists have it with them for their little patients, especially when they need to bribe them into taking an injection and teachers keep some with them to divert children crying uncontrollably. Infact, Scientific studies and research have found it out that chocolate really makes a child happy and helps young teens get out of depression.

Childrenâ€™s academic scores at school have improved drastically when theyâ€™ve been given incentive of this sort. The first advantage that you acquire after eating a chocolate is that it changes your mood and makes you think optimistically. But while lots of parents say, a chocolate can make a child work hard for it, a group of parents feel otherwise. They feel itâ€™s unwise to give children short term incentives. It makes them short- sighted and happy with the â€œnowâ€• feel rather than wait for something big.

This makes them impatient and pleasure loving for small things. Well, though millions of parents have seen an instant change of mood in their children after they have laid their hands on a candy bar not many parents encourage this because they classify it as a â€˜temptationâ€• which is quite likely to turn their children into addicts more than anything else. â€œAnything in excess can be harmful for themâ€• said a parent. Director Tim Burton captured a childâ€™s love for chocolates in his block buster â€œCharlie and the Chocolate Factoryâ€• which was released in the year 2005. Based on the book by Ronald Dahl, the story was about a young boy named Charlie who won a tour to visit one of the most magnificent chocolate factories in the world, headed by the world's most cranked candy manufacturer.

If you are a parent and are worried about your childâ€™s admission in India, and witness the admission season in full swing with OSA. An online admission agent, we do everything for you right from giving you a choice of schools in India through our online school directory to scheduling an interview for your child from a number of schools. Admissions couldnâ€™t get easier, but then, thatâ€™s because OSA understands parental woes that crop up during admission and is dedicated to ease the load off your shoulders.OSA also posts Blogs on the Internet on topics related to education and parenting and understands a childâ€™s world perfectly.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/education-articles/every-child-s-favorite-candy-chocolates.htm - Article Side

Osawebmastersix - About Author:
This article has been written and posted by the team of OnlineSchoolAdmissions - a portal that provides free of cost consultancy to parents and schools for fast and easy online school admission process. Parents can locate a Kushagra School Vasant Kunj or a Kangaroo Kids School of their choice selected from the directory of schools listed on the site and applies to them. They can also search for a Kalyani Public School as per their choice and fill up the school application forms online.

Article Keywords:
Kushagra School Vasant Kunj, Kangaroo Kids School, Kalyani Public School

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!