Article published on May 17th 2012 | Education

Fashion designing, journalism (electronic or print media editing) are the few courses which have been existed in the market from past many years. But it takes boom in recent few years. Theses professions come in an elite course or we can say in the glamour world. From past few years when the accessing of education trend in India is increased among the people then the craze about such courses have also been increased in the students. Students who find themselves very creative in dress designing or writing and searching etc.

can easily join such courses for getting good jobs. Theses are highly paid jobs and requires good amount of hard work, dedication and presence of mind to create new and innovative ideas. No reason to deny if a student is cream in hisher study level. Then they will get the plenty of job options in theses field. The journalism and editing field are comes under the mass communication sector. There are plenty of job options in both the fashion designing and even in mass media courses at various high brand industries. If a person has gain good working experience in any of those fields then they can start their own business too. There are great chances of good salary packages too in the same fields.

If a student is getting all such work opportunities in their field of interests then it sounds like having milk with cream. Many career councilors in India can suggest varieties of new options of works which is based on your studies, which you might not know earlier. For the goodwill of todays study patterns in India many foreign students have also been attracted to study higher studies in India.

Now days after 12th many students are choosing for some sort of diploma or degree professional course which is being taken by them in class 11th. A normal graduation with only arts or commerce wonâ€™t get much advantage in the future career perspectives. They will get specializations in their primary area of studies at graduation levels with theses diplomas.

But if you wish to join the courses like fashion technology or in communication technology, you must have to clear certain entrance exams with counseling sessions before joining those courses. Theses are mandatory exams in major colleges across the India.

After emerging of online or distant learning education pattern in many metro cities students can join some training or internships side by side while pursuing the courses. It gives them double benefit they can learn while earn. In fact both theses field are so vast that students from either field can join theses courses after their completion of class 12th final exams results.
