Fort Wayne residents who have considered attending college, may be holding back due to the high cost of traveling for school. But there is an option that could potentially save you money on room and board â€“ attend college at home in Indiana. There are Fort Wayne colleges that offer a variety of degree programs and you are bound to find one that suits your interests and your goals.

Staying Local Can Help You Focus

Students who travel for college can often find it hard to adjust to their new surroundings. Some find it so hard to adjust, that they end up coming home because their grades suffer. Staying in Fort Wayne can allow you to focus on your schoolwork. If you have children, you probably have a childcare network in place, and that can make a huge difference if you are trying to balance family life and academic life. Having a support system close by can mean the difference between failure and success in school.

Variety of Degrees Close to Home

Colleges and Universities are becoming more flexible and accommodating with their students' schedules. They understand that most students have to work in order to attend school, so they offer a variety of class schedules that may include online, weekend and evening offerings. If you are a busy person, choose a Fort Wayne college that offers programs that fit your lifestyle.

Indiana Quality of Life

Nothing beats the quality of life in Indiana. Leaving the Hoosier State might mean leaving that Midwestern hospitality and friendliness that make Fort Wayne a great place to live. The cost of living in Fort Wayne is very low compared to other cities of comparable size elsewhere in the United States. And Indiana has the beauty of all four seasons, something you won't find in some areas of the country.

Do Your Part for Your Hometown

Staying in Fort Wayne to go to college means keeping your money in your hometown. When you attend school you do a lot of shopping for supplies, you eat food on your way to and from class, and there are everyday expenses to consider. If you stay close to home, you'll be shopping in local stores and patronizing local businesses.
