Article published on December 24th 2011 | Education

Cause and effect essays are all about discussing a cause and its effect, mostly cause and effect essays are assigned to the students on the topic of school violence. The biggest reason for assigning school violence essays is that students should realize the hazardous implications of provoking violence in schools.

Apart from this, school violence essay serves two purposes, first; it creates awareness of the problem prevailing and it suggest remedies to solve these problems. As there are so many possible causes, it becomes difficult for the students to cover every reason. To make things easier for the students, we are providing them with a step by step guide for writing school violence essays.

First Step:

Composing the introduction

You can take a specific cause and commence working on the school violence essay, provide a powerful thesis statement that will be further discussed in the light of reasons in the later part of the essay. Try to first introduce the topic that is school violence and how much it is increasing in the school. Then provide a thesis statement followed by some major highlights of the essay on school violence.

Second step:

First body paragraph:

Develop at least three cause and effects that will be discussed separately in three paragraphs, make sure those ideas or points are reasonable enough to be believed. One of the causes could be something like this; frequent violence shown on the media channels provokes students to take violent actions in the school in order to impress their friends.

Third step:

Second body paragraph:

Another sound idea for second body paragraph would be the violent games that children like to play all the time in their homes, these games provoke them to take violent actions in schools with a view that they would look like the heroes shown in the games they played. This is how you can incorporate the whole idea in the second body paragraph of the essay.

Fourth step:

Third body paragraph

Third body paragraph will be obviously discussing the third idea; the third idea would be something like bullying at schools. Most of the times, student bully each other in schools on various accounts, this provokes violence in schools as well. Include this point in your school violence essay and proceed to the next step.

Fifth step:

Composing Conclusion

Conclusion writing is the easiest thing in the world, all you have to do is to include the thesis statement again in it followed by the major points that you discussed so far in the essay. In the end, give your personal point of views about the hazardous implications of violence in school.

In a nutshell, you have to follow the preceding steps in order to write school violence essays but make sure you have consult your teacher as well in order to discuss the difficulties you are facing. Final words of advice are to proof read the essay again and again to ensure no mistake is left in the school violence essays.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/education-articles/guideline-for-writing-school-violence-essay.htm - Article Side

Samcollier - About Author:
Sam Collier is a senior research writer and provide help for a school violence essays and a essay on school violence.Feel free to contact for any sort of help in this regard.

Article Keywords:
school violence essay, school violence essays, essay on school violence

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!