Thousands of students are studying in the boarding schools in India, all over the country. It is a matter to be pondered as to why the boarding schools have been established as scions of schooling in India. People from different parts of the country send their wards to study in such schools, where they are required to reside in the accommodations provided and attend their classes as well as take part in various extracurricular activities. This surely is a manner of studying which needs to be thought about.

Boarding schools have been introduced into the Indian horizon of primary school education since long time, mostly around the time of independence. Much of it was influenced by the culture of the British people who wanted their kids to be schooled in the best institutes and stay in secured premises. Gradually, students from different backgrounds and regions got accustomed to the system. Their parents wanted them to undergo the best education, probably by staying away from distractions.

In due course of time, the standard of education and the overall personality of the kids took a steep turn towards betterment. When the kids studied in such schools, which were present all over the country, they developed knowledge as well as became proficient in sporting activities, quizzing, and other such extra-curricular activities. It was because of the education imparted in such schools that the students could achieve fame and developed into grown up individuals with a capability and confidence to excel in every field.

Such boarding schools located in Dehradun and Mussoorie have been the perfect representation of the concept in India. Having been established before the independence era, the boarding schools in Dehradun are preferred by many parents to send their wards. Boarding schools in Mussoorie are also well known to people for their education and sporting activities.

Sports are an integral part in these schools because this helps them to be mentally and physically fit to endure the gruelling study sessions. There are plenty of boarding schools in Dehradun which have established their name in the country. As a result, many students belonging to affluent families are taking admissions to pursue their schooling. The classes are taken during the day time and the evening time is dedicated to sporting activities. Such activities are conducted at regular intervals to instil a sense of competition and sportsmanship.

Boarding schools in Mussoorie and Dehradun have been there since long years. In all these years, they have proved time and again that their students are better than those of other schools. Some of the schools also are branches of chain of boarding schools in India and they also have their base or branches in other countries.

Study pattern in these schools are in the lines of English medium schools, where studies are stressed upon with sincerity. Students are able to learn every aspect of their syllabi as well as get the chance to develop their sporting skills. Nowadays, the popularity of these boarding schools has increased tremendously due to which parents are vying for a seat in them. This is because they know that if their kids study in the boarding schools in Mussoorie or Dehradun, they will be far better off than studying in local schools as day scholars.
