One of the foremost things that parents are supposed to provide their children with is education. The reason for this is, education makes the generations civilized and it teaches us how to be well-cultured. Parents need to care about what their kids are learning and how the school is training. Many parents are unhappy with some of the school and feel insecure because of their teaching method. In various elementary and secondary schools, education is more focused on encouraging attitudes than academics. It is the duty of the responsible parents to check the reputation of the school because there are many cases of school violence.

This school violence is increasing geometrically so the parents should instruct their kids not to involve in this hostility rather they should learn and receive proper education. Kids are not mature so they need guidance and training in discerning truth from error and good ideas from bad. Parents are the only one who stay close to their kids, protect them from any harm and complement education with instruction about right and wrong. One of the significant phases that parents should show is that love and fondness towards their children. It has been already proved that love and affections are the most powerful tool for healings. If this is applied to violence related issue then most kid will give up violence.

The parents also should be aware of the school friend of their child just to ensure they are in a good company. Parents should always try to maintain friendly environment at home every time. When a child is cornered with any sort of problem then their mind can be blocked with unethical thoughts. They should give the child some sense of belonging because it is too risky to neglect the child. Their sense is not fully developed as we adult people have therefore they need tenderly care. Always give your child parental advice and instruction which can also help them to make a quality discussion. While study period the child should only study and not watch any TV shows or play games.

There should be a proper coordination between the teachers and parents because this is necessary for the proper upbringing of a child. During the formative years of a child the parents should give adequate attention to the kids because failure to do so can give rise to disastrous future of the young ones. When school, parents and communities work together to inculcate learning in a child then the children tend to do better in school, stay in school longer, and like school more. It has been proved that parental involvement encourages the child to obtain higher grades and test scores and enroll in higher level programs.

Child also gets the zeal to attend the class regularly. The child develops better social skills, show improved behavior, and adapt well to school. The parental involvement should be flourishing according to the National Network of Partnership Schools and it must be meaningfully integrated into a school's programs and community. Conversation with families about school programs and student progress is need for a child development. Encourage families to be involved in learning activities at home and include parents as participants in important school decisions.
