Article published on December 13th 2011 | Education

It is always a pleasure to get information easily and nowadays everything is available on the internet. Information is available about each and every place of the world. But the question is can you trust that information? What we need is a genuine source of information. There are lots of trusted websites which are just like genuine a world travel guide. However a website in which details about places are added by real people who are members and users of a travel community always provides the most up to date, genuine and true information.

There are some websites which provide facilities such as maps so that you can easily find a place and can get information about a place and find whether it is worth-visiting or not. Real videos and pictures are added to locations by travellers so that everyone can get the correct details about a place. Online travel communities are as good as social networking sites for travellers. You can make new friends, chat with them and share your experiences about the places you have visited and tell them about the place you live in. These well designed websites are fully functional and provide all the necessary details about any place. You can promote yourself and your favorite travel locations through these websites for free. Just sign up, add your information and mark locations on the map so that people can see them and refer to the map whenever needed.

If you are planning to visit any new city, then you can browse the location and search the attractive places in that city. You can get help about transportation, schools, shops, food, accommodation and other services in the city. These websites also feature usersâ€™ reviews and comments to help you decide whether the place is worth-visiting or not. Suppose you are planning to visit San Francisco, then you can refer to the San Francisco Travel Guide and can search attractive places in that location. By watching real videos of many places you can easily judge whether that place is good to visit or not. Just like the old saying â€œa picture is worth a thousand wordsâ€•, you can see genuine snaps of various places taken by visitors that will help you to decide about the beauty of the place. So online travel websites are like a personal guide which is always with you wherever you go. You can have this service for free and you only need to sign up for a free account at any community websites that offer a tourist information guide.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/education-articles/online-travel-guide-and-travellers-community.htm - Article Side

Tim Davies - About Author:
Chris Ryan and Tim Davies are the co-creators of WhereWhatGo, a global community website for travel enthusiasts. With WhereWhatGo, they concentrate on developing a facility to create the very best a world travel guide possible. They have both travelled extensively in the course of their work and for the sheer pleasure of being on the road. They both live in Thailand and presently operate their site from Chiang Mai.

Article Keywords:
Travel Advice, Tourist Information Guide, World Travel Guide

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!