Article published on December 17th 2011 | Education

Philosophical essays are quite enthralling for the students as there is no standard guideline involved, all they have to is to generate different ideas pertaining to the concepts of philosophy and jot them down in their philosophy essays. Students who have an interest in philosophy find it enjoyable but those who donâ€™t find it a painstaking task to perform.

There are two main pillars of philosophical essay writing; that are logical reasoning and arguments, this is why sometimes it becomes difficult for the student to deal with philosophical essays, the most common topic is the philosophy of education essays which is assigned to the students. However, there are many other topics for philosophy essays as well on which you can write your essay with ease.

Following are some suggested philosophy essay topics:

1- Let us first discuss the most frequent philosophical essay subject that is philosophy of education essay, then you can write on the topic of â€œAre human behaviors derived from their genes or the surrounding environment? In your essays on philosophy of education.

2- If you have been given the theme of philosophy of religion essay then an ideal topic would be,â€• Any good reason for believing in the existence of God?â€•

3- If you have been assigned to write essays in moral philosophy the an ideal topic could be something like this,â€• Is the word morality derived from religion, give your answer in the light of powerful reasonsâ€•

4- And if you have been assigned to write essays on the philosophy of Socrates then your topic could be, â€œWhat is the reason for our lives?â€• or on â€œHow we are to live?â€• a book written by Soc the topic of philosophy of Socrates.

5- If you are planning to write on the essays in ancient Greek philosophy then you can write on the topic of,â€• What is perishing? How it came to be? (taken from a Greek philosopherâ€™s work Parmenides)

6- If you are planning to write on a general philosophy then the topic of your philosophical essay could be, what is epistemology? Or How to distinguish between reality and illusion?

7- If you want to write on an philosophical thinker then you can take examples of Socrates, Paul Harwich, Noam Chomsky, Hartry Field or Paul Grice, there are many contemporary philosophers as well that can be used effectively in your philosophical essays.

8- You can also provide a comparison between old philosopher with the modern ones, for example; Socrates versus Noam Chomsky. Read them both and jot down the difference of thinking among them.

Hence, there are thousands of other subjects on which you can write educational philosophy essays but the preceding ones are some of the different and unique culminated out of so many. Try to read and understand them, select the one which you like the most. Final words of advice are to go with a topic that you can deal with easily, for example if you donâ€™t understand the philosophical thinking of Socrates then there is no way you would be able to write the philosophy essays.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/education-articles/some-interesting-topics-for-philosophy-essay.htm - Article Side

Samcollier - About Author:
Sam Collier is a senior research writer and provide help for a philosophy essays and a philosophy of education essays.Feel free to contact for any sort of help in this regard.

Article Keywords:
philosophy essay, philosophy essays, philosophical essays, philosophy of education essays, philosophy of religion essay, educational philosophy essay

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!