If we go on the current market vogue, it is quite clear that recruiters and companies are giving their first preference to candidates who are specialized in several technological attainments. As after facing the one of the biggest economic disaster of ever times, companies are avoiding to hire individual professionals for their various jobs. Currently, company are looking for professionals who can look after multiple aspects of company's working independently and also who can easily learn new technology trending in the market. Because IT and core sectors always faces situations where they have to change themselves according to the latest technologies, so they need smart professionals who can easily learn new technologies and start giving result as soon as possible.

Summer training is of the rare opportunities, where students can gain all those quality technology wise and personality wise, which are required in the corporate world. If done from the very first year of B.Tech,MCA or any other degree or diploma students can easily have hands full knowledge of atleast two to three technologies, which makes them completely different from other students who are having knowledge of only one technology. It is always been a added advantage from students having knowledge of two or three technological domain, and have higher chance of getting a job very soon. Because company wants students who are technological strong enough and can soon contribute in the company's working.

But unfortunately most of the technical students takes their summer training for granted which makes them suffer all their life. Student must know this fact that without great technical and personality attainments, its is almost impossible to get a job on entry level. There are some cases, where students do have great technological knowledge but lacks interpersonal skills which are very basic need of corporate world, which stops them from getting a job in the corporate sector. To learn corporate trend and environment, one should do his or her summer training from a corporate company only. This helps students to adapt themselves to corporate environment during their training period only.

Summer training imparts confidence in the students, which helps them during their recruitments and placement programs. Summer training fullfills all vista which students lacks during their college curriculum, i.e. personality development and practical knowledge of latest technologies.

Summer training is the need of time and factors which contributes in the career shaping of the students. It's high time for students to chance their point of view towards summer training, as it is much more then a certificate training program.

Summer training 2012 is about to arrive, and students are requested to take it seriously for their great career ahead.
