I was doing my graduation with Economics major but all of a sudden I changed my mind and joined an Airhostess training Institute. I thought the world of airlines is what I had always craved for. Soon I saw my dreams getting shattered when I realized that the profession is not my cup of tea. My parents were against of my choice, but later I understood what mistake I had made by taking a wrong decision.

Children are unaware of many things because they don't have the experience of life. To make them not to take any wrong step in life, parents should teach them to make their own right decisions from an early age of life. Children often end up in taking wrong decisions in the vital steps of their lives and later they regret. Before such a situation comes, prepare your child to always opt for wise decisions. Here are few tips which can help you to prepare your child to take right and strong decisions of life.

1. Don't give them an ample of options. For example, if you want to give your kids a choice, give them only a few options like what would you like to have for dinner, spaghetti or rice?
2. Give them small decisions to make and try not to indulge yourself while they make it.
3. Make them feel that they are independent and therefore are bound to take their own decisions. Try not to solve their problems and let them do it on their own.
4. Tell them to think about the consequence of any matter before they make their decisions on it.
5. Be there with your children before they take the final decision and guide them to shape their decision. Talk to your children throughout the process because it is a lot easier to talk to them than helping them to rectify their mistakes.
6. Give them instances of all the decisions you made which resulted successful later. This will help them to follow the path you chose once to make a right decision.

Admitting children in the best schools is not the only responsibility of parents. There is a lot parents are required to do to shape up the life of their children. It is a fact that parents cannot stay with their kids for the entire life. Therefore, they should train their children from an early age so that they don't face any kind of trouble in their life.
