It requires a lot of hard work to be a CPA, but after getting the license the work does not stops right there. In fact, once you turn into a CPA, there is a requirement of continuing professional education in the accounting and other subjects so that the CPA stays fresh on the latest topics and developments. This is a requirement from the state boards, and they also require state rules, regulations and ethics reviews as well. When a CPA chooses CPE he should be informed on all of the recent modifications in the guidelines of the profession in their respective state. There are many differences among the various states for renewal of CPA license but the component of CPE is part of almost all the state's guidelines for CPA license renewal. For this reason and the average amount of CPE required is 40 hours per year, most CPAs need to allocate sufficient time during the year for the completion of CPE. CPA's complete CPE to fulfill the requirements of their respective state's license renewal bodies.

An unlimited ONLINE CPE CPA subscription could be bought for $149 from MasterCPE in which all the courses on the website except ethics can be taken to help complete the CPE requirements of a CPA. The CPA CPE subscription generally includes charges for all course material, assessment and certificates. Every course comprises review questions, final examination and grading, which are all are conducted online.

When a course is chosen, it appears in the account page of the subscriber. The subscriber will complete each section before moving onto the next one. Once the final examination of a course is completed, the course certificate can be viewed and printed from the website.

It is also not mandatory to complete a lesson within a single study session. The subscriber is allowed to save the answers that he has given for review lessons or final examinations and return back to the site and the lesson he was studying. As long as the student saves their answers, they can always find their course in progress by simply returning to their account, from any computer at any time.
