Parents who are seeking the best program of childhood education in Port Jefferson, NY may wish to seriously think about enrolling their child in a Montessori pre-school program. The educational methods and development will provide a well-rounded education that will put them well on their way to becoming successful academically when they attend high school, college and even pursue advanced degrees.

The Montessori Curriculum

Unlike the traditional pre-school in Port Jefferson, NY the Montessori program is one that approaches education in a multi-dimensional way. What this means is it extends beyond just a core level of learning and provides students an education in material that is more likely to captivate their interest in the subject matter while also enhancing their listening skills and encouraging them to express themselves. All of these multi-faceted educational components allow students to enjoy successful academic performance because it stimulates their desire to learn.

Basics of the Program

The curriculum of the Montessori program is one that provides not only exposure to information in books but hands-on experience. In addition Montessori childhood education in Jefferson, NY is not limited to only pre-school but provides educational resources for children through Kindergarten. This combination of books and hands-on experience prepares students for their future academic success.

Those children who obtain a Montessori childhood education in Port Jefferson, NY will participate in the following:

>> Art and Music Appreciation

>> Movement and Dance

>> Science and Geography

>> Spanish

While some people may feel the curriculum is rather extensive for children attending pre-school in Port Jefferson, NY, experts believe that children can learn easier when they are exposed to topics at an early age, especially foreign languages. Choosing to enroll your children in this type of program will provide the background necessary for future academic success.

The Right Choice

Before parents make a final decision about pre-school in Port Jefferson, NY it is important to weigh the advantages of the Montessori program against an ordinary pre-school program. In many cases pre-school education is limited to playtime and some minor education such as counting, recognizing numbers, learning the alphabet, spelling some small words. Of course, Kindergarten will provide more than pre-school even in a non-Montessori environment, but the extent of hands-on education is less extensive. Preparing children early assures a well-rounded education that provides hands on experience in several important educational arenas.

Quality of Education vs. Cost

The key to choosing quality pre-school in Port Jefferson, NY is not in the cost of the education but the quality. Children learn much more in a Montessori program because the program is geared toward their future educational requirements. Being able to incorporate hands on learning experiences that focus on a child's individual skill and intellectual levels allow students to progress to levels that will retain their interest not only during their childhood education but throughout their learning experience: high school, college and even graduate school. When teachers encourage students and provide interesting material, students are more likely to succeed. This concept is the one that governs the Montessori teaching methods.
