There are all types of documents for which you may need a French translation, either from English to French or vice versa, and of course, other languages into French. At Fast-French-Translations.com, our list of translation services show that we are a well-rounded company that looks to cover all the bases, and it is not just documents that we look to translate. Here are four fields in which you will find a solution for your French translation and if you cannot find the field that you are working with, you can still contract us and we will do everything in our power to make sure you receive the help you need.

Legal Translation

The law is one instance where a misinterpretation or a mistake made in terms of a translation can mean the difference between a potential client joining the fold, or a possible lawsuit. Reading these documents can be a handful anyway, but in another language, the prospect of a mistake increases exponentially. Our translators will make sure that there is no second guessing as to what a statement means and that way, you can plan your response accordingly and accurately.

Medical Translation

The healthcare industry is also a field where you cannot make a mistake because of an incorrect French translation, and there have been stories of people going to hospitals and not receiving the proper treatment or medication because something was lost in translation. Our translators are versed in converting from English to French and vice versa, so you, a friend or a loved one can get the care you need when you are away from home (or moving to a new home).

Financial Translation

This can also be linked with legal translation as finance and law are tied closely together, and this can mean the translation of annual reports, statements and other documents under the umbrella of finance, explained and translated into simpler terms for everyone to understand. Again, an incorrect French translation can mean an expensive solution, and Fast-French-Translations.com can help you avoid that step.

Marketing Translation

It is always a good idea to try and expand your place in the market, whether it is online, via print or in the media. Fast-French-Translations.com has all the tools to aid your companyâ€™s ascent to the next level with the ability to convert your marketing materials between the two languages. Why settle for catering to one market when you can go for two in todayâ€™s global marketplace? We have the testimonials to prove we are the leaders in the industry.

But you do not have to take our word for it, all you have to do is visit Fast-French-Translations.com to read samples of the work we have done (not just in French, but in other languages as well), and you will see the care that we put into our French translation services. Do not wait another minute, head over to Fast-French-Translations.com and see which of our services is best for you!
