In all industries, professionals are expected to stay abreast of the latest changes in their profession. In case of CPA's, earning CPE credits and completing CPE (Continuing Professional Education) is mandatory to comply with the license renewal conditions placed by the different state boards and accreditation providers.

How to Clear the CPE Hurdle Easily

Continuing Professional Education or CPE is an essential requirement for the CPAs. As part of the CPE, CPAs get acquainted with newer skills needed to combat the challenges that keep surfacing in the industry from time to time. While many CPAs find it to be a cumbersome and time-consuming task, overcoming CPE has become a lot simpler than ever, thanks to online CPE FOR CPAS. Unlike the regular CPE courses or webinars that require CPAs to be present during a fixed time period, online CPE courses render CPAs the freedom to study at a time that is most convenient for the CPA â€“ they can study around the requirements and time-constraints of their profession.

MasterCPE offers online CPE for CPA's. There are hundreds of online CPE courses available on the latest topics. The courses are designed to help CPA's save their time, money and effort while earning CPE credits. You can even find an unlimited subscription of CPE for CPA's from MasterCPE. The duration of unlimited subscription is 1 year. The cost of subscription, though, includes all the CPE courses on the website, except that of an Ethics CPE for which a separate purchase is required. The cost of study material, assessment and certificates awarded to CPA's is all inclusive in the subscription price.

Go Pilot Testing to Earn CPE Credits for Free

The state CPA boards and accreditation agencies have provided the option of CPA's receiving credits to pilot test a course. In pilot testing, a CPA reviews the content, style of delivery and efficiency of a CPE course and posts his analysis regarding the same. The CPA must also report how long it took to complete the course. Using these findings, the course provider will make changes as required and then average the times to create a total allotted number of credits. For their time, a CPA gets rewarded for his endeavor to pilot test a course. They receive the CPE CREDITS for free. CPAs can use pilot testing to determine whether the resources offered at a website are easy to use and worthwhile, while at the same time learning new principles of accounting and taxation as part of the course, all at no cost.
