Here comes the Christmas preparations, organization, lunch or dinner, the menu, the grandmother, but what can we do to 'Decorate' the table without overdoing it? If we follow the philosophy of sustainability Of recycling of materials, Of 'environmental impact, We can do nice things using seasonal fruit such as apples, oranges, mandarins or clementines and adding only a few tape red or gold or silver to your taste, a plate red or silver or even gold. Maybe you still have a 'light diffuser' last year and want to reuse it. That's it?

Yes, it is enough, however, know that all decorations are suitable for a table on average simple not one of those crystal and silverware, something more affordable. You only need to adjust the color of the plate or tape or if the chosen color is purple, the red plate a little out of place, whether it is gold, or even keep the same color red is fine there. Looking for a uniformity do not mix too many colors including dishes, glasses, if you have difficulties to match your favorite colors 'unique', no fantasies of tablecloth or napkins even less on glasses. Or you use the white to match all colors.

Let's see now some easy example, maybe it can also be fun to involve children, grandchildren, brothers, children who will have fun and learn that the fruit as well as being good to eat is good, too.

Apples with Light

Using only 6 apples of different colors, the light diffuser with a candle, a plate (red in this case) and large gold ornamentation is what you get, alternate colored apples, the speaker in the center of light and the scattered ' snowflakes' gold.

Pyramid Orange

This centerpiece can then be 'eaten' at the end of lunch. Use three oranges, mandarins or clementines a dozen, a plate and tape off the edges of those with semi-rigid and can be modeled. Place pyramid citrus fruits, oranges and above under the mandarins or clementines to form a pyramid. Now take the tape and 'wrap' as if it were a gift pack. I did not do it the staple, but if you find that you can feel good a nice bow on top.

Row colored

Another simple composition, you have to choose your favorite fruit is important to have the stem or branch to which to tie the tape, simply tie together with a fruit loop , alternative, then you can simply supported at the center of the table and your guests can then choose what to eat. Here's an example. Of course the tape should be low. These are just some suggestions, think also about other combinations, and of course with seasonal fruit, cherries and peaches in the summer letâ€™s leave.
