Throwing a bowling party at your kidâ€™s birthday is a great idea to have fun. Kids and young teenagers love bowling birthday party and they will rock all evening without you making much effort to arrange for the fun. It really does not matter whether you are planning for months or itâ€™s a last minute come up, arranging a bowling party is quite easy and fun filled.

Bowling party invitations

Create your own invitations; involve your kids in making them. You can make the invitation card in the shape of a bowling ball, make it colorful by using different color pen to write the invitation details and make some cartoons sketches..

The party menu

Now since it is your kidâ€™s party everything must be colorful and attractive. There are a lot of food item that you can easily make at home and even 1-2 days in advance to avoid the last minute rush. Start with small cupcakes, use more 5 to 6 types of cake topping. Over the topping sprinkle some chocolate dust and mouth watering cup cake is ready.

For decoration, buy bowling shirts to make your feel like a part of a team. Put a banner in front of your house like (welcome to [your last name] bowling alley). If you have different lanes or big lawns then convert that into a bowling alley, it is better to have more than one ally. Decorate everything with red, blue and white balloons to emphasize on the theme.

The bowling birthday party is incomplete with out the favors. Now you can keep the favors matching to the party theme or you can choose any item of your choice. I would suggest put some confectionaries, bowling pins, bowling games and bowling stickers in a transparent bag and tie the bag with colored ribbon. Prepare as many bags as you need and use different colored ribbons for each. Kids will love them!
