The Best Walking Trails in Spain by Thomasgalvin

Article published on January 7th 2012 | Entertainment

People with the wander lust enjoy walking holidays in Europe. After all, there are historical places to explore, breath-taking sights to see and new adventures to experience in every corner. But did you know some of the best walking holidays in Europe are found only in Spain. This country is mostly popular for its sandy beaches and historical sites, which in turn make it perfect for a walking holiday destination. People on vacation will discover different landscapes that range from spectacular mountain scenes to chestnut and oak covered forests, and not to forget, long winding costal trails. In addition, it is a Mediterranean country so you have amazing weather conditions all year long. Anybody in a mood for walking holidays in Spain will have their pick of easy or advanced walking trails.

Sights to explore in Spain

You can start your walking vacation by going to the Catalan region of Spain. This is a well-known walking holiday destination in Spain. Therefore, you will find some of the best and exotic walking trails there that have clear road signs and road maps that will help you on your journey.

In addition here are top 3 places you should explore on foot in Spain:

1) Navarra

This autonomous community is located in the northern part of Spain and is officially known as the Chartered Community of Navarre. Its capital city is Pamplona. The place not only has amazing historical sites such as Palacio Real de Olite , it is situated near the quiet picturesque Ebro Valley. The Palacio de Olite (Castle of the Kings of Navarre) is considered best area to explore. In this walk, you will get to learn a lot of the history from the 15th Century.

2) The costal trail of Menorca

Menorca is a famous Spanish Balearic Island found in the Mediterranean Sea. The coastal trail is located in the north western corner of Menorca where you will discover a tranquil and beautiful trail. It is one of UNESCO protect biosphere reserve so you can imagine the exotic animals and plant life that waits to be discovered by you. Moreover, it has rich cultural history where you will discover a whole new culture and lifestyle. The island was once not only inhabited by ancient Greeks but also Turks, Arabs and Romans.

3) Valencia is a walkerâ€™s paradise

The third largest city in Spain has many wondrous sights that you can explore on foot. From miles of lush green vineyards to paddy fields to fascinating deep gorges are all found in Valencia. All you need is good map and a travel guide who can show you different places to explore each day of your holiday.

In conclusion the key to having fun walking holidays in Spain is simply a well-planned and organized holiday!

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/entertainment-articles/the-best-walking-trails-in-spain.htm - Article Side

Thomasgalvin - About Author:
Find a Walking Holidays In Spain and a Walking Holidays related information at a www.catalanadventures.com

Article Keywords:
Cycling Holidays

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!