World of Warcraft is an MMO game, popular among its global players as WOW. With striking graphics, the game offers thrilling action as the name promises, keeping players engaged in its mind-boggling levels since its development. The WOW free server has become particularly celebrated among the game loyalists because of its networking virtue. The server brings together players located in different zones, enabling them to connect to different privately run game servers. Through the platform, you can connect the game client with the private WOW private server without involving the individual Blizzard servers.

The servers have been in existence since the game was officially launched for the first time, years ago. Sadly, the official server outpaces the private ones in many ways. Quite surprising, despite the compromised functionality, support, balance and crash issues, people have for long been playing in the WOW private server. If you are marveling on the reason, then this is because some of the private servers that are maintained and kept upkeep to offer a seamless, uninterrupted gaming experience. Thus, the most crowded WOW free server are not riddled with complexity and playability issues. Hence, their undying and consistent popularity among the users is justified.

A survey was conducted on the online players to note the reason of the unparalleled popularity of a WOW free server. After interviewing several players who reportedly spend time on the servers, it has been observed that many players who are loyalists of the private servers are actually active account holders over the official server of World Of Warcraft. In fact, many of them were actually subscribers of the retail servers at a point of time. So, basically, the common reasons as confessed by most players about their reasons for being on a WOW private server are financial issues and boredom

Firstly, the WOW private server runs for free that allows players to play without shelling out monthly subscriptions. This is the reason why gamers have switched over to the free server having failed to keep up with the payment demands of the official server. Some of them chose to be out of it because they were entitled to a fixed monthly payment, regardless of how long they were utilizing the platform. The second reason fished out of the WOW free server addicts is the boredom factor. There are two categories of players, hardcore and occasional types.

The first type gamers have a very strong guild owing to which they have experienced most of the game's closing content. However, the occasional players are the weak ones who have not been able to reach till the end of the game. Thus, the pro players disappear from the free servers for sometime, in a bid to explore new content and exciting feature updates in the official WOW free server, while the novices stick to the free ones.
