Roger Hamilton is Not Going to Stop by Corwin Smith

Article published on February 25th 2012 | Ethics

There is only one man who is really bothered about repetitive rise and fall of the stock markets and the subsequent effect of that on the lives of the people that are directly or indirectly linked with the markets. It needs not be expounded that the financial markets are a part of the bigger domain that is the financial world. It is this bigger arena that keeps on shouting for stitches for every wound that it takes. And the frequency of these wounds is increasing with every passing day. And there is only one man who knows the way out of the misery. The name of that gentleman is Roger Hamilton, and the only thing that he is bothered about ever since he identified the problem and found the solution is to resurrect the lives of the people who are heavily involved in the system and somehow got negatively affected by it. And by improving the lives of the people this man wishes to make sure that the entire world of finance becomes immune to the wounds that keep hurting the financial world every now and then.

Coming back to the identification of the problem and the finding of the solution to the problem that plagues the world of finance, Roger Hamilton is of the opinion that if the element of nature is not allowed to occupy its real position in the world of finance then this most crucial world would never be able to walk the walk that it is meant to do. And once the element of nature settles down comfortably in the entire scheme of things of the world of finance, then there is nothing in this world that can stop the system from prospering and the people involved in it from benefiting from it.

And Roger Hamilton has just not stopped at the identification of the problem and its solution. In fact he has gone miles ahead by formulating theories and tests and various other materials that will go a long way in correcting the anomalies in the present system of wealth creation. One of the main things that really need to be emphasized here is that the theories that Roger has promulgated are a bit complex in nature. And in order to understand these theories, it is really important that the guidance is taken from the experts who have comprehensively understood the theories like wealth dynamics, wealth spectrum, and talent dynamics.

Although Roger Hamilton has done his bit but the man is still not satisfied with the achievements that he has made. He is determined to go ahead with the work that he has started and would remain the beacon that he has become for the people involved in the world of wealth creation.
