

Article published on June 15th 2012 | Fashion

When one hears the word digital timepieces, the first thing that comes to mind is their ability and precision. One disadvantage that a layman thinks of is that they are not stylish. Well, here the layman is wrong. Modern Digital Watches are being produced with both functionality and style packed together into one timepiece. These are the modern era timepieces designed keeping the unisex mentality in mind and the growing demands of the market. These timepieces are capable of showing precise time in a never seen before stylish way. These can also be called the perfect timepieces as they are feature-rich and provide elegance.

So how come these digital timepieces that were so much in fashion in the late 90s went off the markets in early 2000s, well a big reason for that is the advent of china dumping and more emphasis being given to precision over quality. The watch manufacturers who had earlier adopted these new technologies of a digital watch were certain that they had a monopoly over the market so they began producing cheaper watches which just gave enough features that an ordinary analogue watch couldn't match. But with the rising demand for quality and elegance there has been a steady improvement in the quality of digital watches in a past few years. Modern digital timepieces come feature-packed and have stylish looks that flaunt the audience. Naturally the trend is growing and the demand in the market for these chic pieces is increasing.

The primary audience for the first generation digital timepieces included just the sportsmen and athletes. But things have changed since then and nowadays the common man segment has been included in the digital watch segment. The big companies are producing more feature-rich and stylish digital watches keeping in mind common audience such as teenage kids, young professionals etc.

The days are far behind when digital watches were being worn by just children and sportsmen. These new chic pieces are in demand in many fashion segments, especially after many Italian designers included them in their recent fashion shows. Many fashion houses are signing contracts with digital timepiece manufacturing giants and the trend is sure to grow. These timepieces are becoming universal and days are not far ahead when they will replace the analogue watch completely.

All in all, a digital display watch is becoming the fashion statement for young minds. As manufacturers of these timepieces have realized this trend, they have already made efforts to bring in the market new products in more chic and elegant designs trying to lure all the segments of society from women to teenagers at once.

The replica market for digital screen watches is also growing steadily providing customers with branded-like feeling at the cost of a regular digital timepiece. And it is expected that the segment is sure to grow in the upcoming years with more and more feature-rich watches hitting the streets, days are not far that we will have common people wearing watches with GPS, internet or other similar rich functionalities.

Article Source:

<http://www.articleside.com/fashion-articles/rise-of-the-modern-digital-watches-functionality-with-style.htm> - Article Side

Spence Weavers - About Author:

If you are looking for cheap digital watches (in Denmark we use the word a billige digitale ure) of high quality, go to this web address. There you will be able to buy exclusive Casio watches (in Danish a eksklusive Casio ure) and more, without spending tons of money.

Article Keywords:

fashion, style, functionality, modern, digital watches, watches, watch

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!