Christian Debt Relief and its Moral Values by James Blee

Article published on April 19th 2012 | Finance

Debt solutions following the principle values mentioned in the Bible is the main essence of the Christian debt relief activities. It's quite hard to follow these principles in the present days, but one should at least acquire some knowledge about these principles. The first principle deals with the trouble of debt. When we lend some money from an individual or a financial institution, it's hard for the person to pay the principal amount as well as the interest. So, the moral values as per the christian debt relief activities advices us to lead a decent life, not a life of pomp and grandeur by taking loans from others. Besides the interest which is called the financial cost, there is also something called the spiritual cost.

In the Bible, we always come across the path to freedom. The same is an important aspect of the Christian debt relief activities. To minimize the rate of interest paid by the debtor is the path to salvation. The amount to be paid in a monthly basis is diminished, so that the debtor can pay the amount every month and lead his life with head held high.

The main aim of the Christian debt relief activities is uniting the people with the God. When a person is almost crushed under the pressure of debt and the constant thought of repaying it, he loses the spiritual connection with God. Thus if the loan amount can be paid quickly, he can again devote himself in the worshipping of the God. This is what in other words known as the spiritual healing.

The spiritual cost paid as a part of the christian debt relief activities is much more that the financial expenses. Stuck neck deep with numerous litigations, the mind and soul of a person is governed by the earthly matters. Monetary burdens can easily worsen any relationship too. Also, one should always help the poor as this is another way to unite with God.
