Tax Debt Relief – the Role of the IRS in Helping Taxpayers Jacob Smith

Article published on April 18th 2012 | Finance

The IRS goes to good lengths to help individuals with tax debt relief by helping them file their tax returns. You can expect assistance from the IRS any time and through various means too. Help is available in person, online and also over the telephone. The IRS has, however, requested individual taxpayers to visit their website alone if you are looking for direct help from the IRS instead of going to other IRS tax relief offers that other firms might provide. Although it is perfectly alright to get help from outside, the idea behind this is that if you want the IRS to help you with your IRS tax debts, you need to approach them directly. Their website has all the necessary forms and detailed information related to your IRS tax debts.

Advantage of the IRS online service

If you are seeking IRS tax relief through the IRS their online service is of great help. Through that you can:

• File for free: This is a program exclusively available to those individuals who want the IRS tax relief options from the IRS themselves. You can find branded tax-software or even forms that can be filled online and submitted too. The service is absolutely free of any charge and you can prepare an e-file for your tax returns. If you earn $58, 000 or less than that you may qualify for a software that is free of cost through a partnership that is private-public with other manufacturers. If you earn more than that you may get access to e-forms.

• Locate authorized e-file provider: This is a great debt relief option when you can find someone who will help you file your returns electronically.

• Find EITC assistance: This assistance is available in both English as well as in Spanish to help you find out if you qualify for the Earned Income Tax Credit.

• Work with a collaborative tax assistant: With this federal tax relief option you can now find answers to several questions related to your tax.

• Agreement to pay online: You may be entitled to pay online in case you are not able to meet the deadline of filing and paying your tax returns on time.

• Get access to the calculator for IRS withholding: This calculator will help you calculate that the money that you have withheld from the IRS is appropriate.

Advantage of IRS telephone filing

In order to provide proper debt reduction taxes help, the IRS has set up several toll free numbers where you may call up for help. These lines are set in both English as well as Spanish where you can order forms for both current as well as previous year. In addition you may also order for the instructions as well as publications.

Advantage of IRS personal tax preparers

There are volunteer assistants and counselors whose help you can take to get debt relief. Check for the VITA site location in order to receive help.

Advantage of IRS assistance centers for taxpayers

If you think that your personal tax problems cannot be handled over the phone or online, you may use this service set up by the IRS.
