How to make White Blooming Tea or Jasmine Tea by Nknilesh Suresh

Article published on February 23rd 2012 | Food

Gone are the days when only a simple milk tea or black tea could be made. Today, exotic varieties of teas can be made within no time in your very own kitchens. All you need to do is buy a packet of white tea and within minutes, you can have for yourself a wonderful glass of warm fresh white tea.

After you buy white tea, simply follow the steps below to make tea within a few minutes:

Place one white blooming tea ball in a clear, medium to large sized glass tea pot or tempered glass pitcher.

Prepare the water: White tea, the water should not be boiling (170 degrees is best)

Pour the hot water into the glass container.

Watch for three to five minutes as it unravels from a tiny ball into a beautiful flower-like bloom.

Steep the tea for at least 3 minutes (longer for a darker, more robust tea). Taste the tea as it steeps to see if it has reached a desired strength.

Pour all the tea into cups. If you're not going to drink it all, pour it into another teapot where it can stay warm. Leaving the hot water in contact with the tea for too long can adversely affect the taste.[

Re-steep the tea. You may be able to do this 2-3 times, depending on the size, brand, how much tea you made, and how long you steeped the tea the first time. Remember that after a few re-steeping, the flavor will not be as bold as before in other pots.

There are many brands of white teas available in the market today, thereby giving you a large choice of teas to choose from. The best white tea brands are available with Art of Tea and these can be bought online. Jasmine white tea, Beach flower, Blooming Bliss tea, White Lotus tea are all available on the site and with just the click of a button these teas can be bought and exotic drinks can be made from them. A wide range of white blooming teas are available and just watching the flower open in front of your eyes makes you want to make the tea again and again.

With their distinct flavour and easy way of preparation, white teas are a rage amongst tea lovers. Even those who werenâ€™t are now lovers of tea because of their decision to try white teas. Buy white teas and you will realise this for yourself!
