Decorating Wedding Tents by Cooper

Article published on February 13th 2012 | Gardening

Wedding tents provide an ideal way for someone to host their reception and they have many advantages over other venues for getting married. There are many reasons for this, and there are many ways in which wedding tents are superior. Here we will look at some of them and at how you get stand to benefit.

First of all, wedding tents are ideal for anyone hoping to get married somewhere that doesn't have an indoor venue for getting married. This then means that they can choose somewhere like a forest where they went on dates, or somewhere like the moors. It also means that they can get married somewhere like a friend's garden if it's large enough and can this way save lots of money. By quickly erecting a tent they can save a lot of time and money and create something just as nice.

The other big reason that wedding tents are so useful is that they allow you to get an outdoors feeling to your wedding without being at the mercy of the weather. An outdoor wedding is a great feeling and makes for some wonderful photographs, but unfortunately it often leaves the wedding at the mercy of the weather â€“ and all it takes is a freak down pour for the wedding to be ruined.

To this end wedding tents are a great solution. These can be erected easily in any location by simply popping them up, and that then means that the area is kept under shelter but at the same time people are close to the outdoors and able to benefit. The wedding also of course costs a whole lot less as a result of the wedding being based somewhere that isn't a traditional venue and doesn't cost a lot of money to rent out.

But how do you go about decorating wedding tents and getting them to look on-par with what you might pay a lot of money for?

Actually this is relatively easy and surprisingly it's possible to make wedding tents look just as romantic and magical as a range of other locations â€“ even more so. The reason for this is first of all the partial light that comes in, but then also the amount of freedom you will have over the way you decorate.

You will need to get tables and chairs for instance and this is something that you need to think about in advance. Look for matching furniture if possible and think of what will look good outside. You will also probably want to have a table for gifts and similarly for the cake. Meanwhile you also need to clear space for people to dance and for any other entertainment you have planned.

Finally you should think about features you can add to draw the eye and to make your wedding different and one to remember. Things like chocolate fountains or bubble walls are perfect for wedding tents and a great way to get more out of the space.
