Article published on April 28th 2012 | Gardening

Trees on any property can be a beautiful thing. They work to enhance the aesthetic appeal of any property, and also its value as well. However like anything in life, when trees are thriving and doing well, they add beauty, but when they begin to decay or show signs of disease, they can not only be an eyesore but can also cause injury or damage. This is when property owners need to start thinking about what to do with trees that are not doing well or are growing in a way that could lead to problems or damage. When trees begin to become a problem, rather than an aesthetic or green feature on a property, tree removal and tree pruning needs to be considered. But tree pruning is not as easy as it sounds, and for the safety of all parties, it is always best to hire a professional that knows how to do the job the right way. With so many tree removal and tree pruning Portland based companies around, how do you know how to choose the right one? Here we talk about just that.

Before you begin looking for a tree pruning service, you first need to know what kind of service you need handled. Do you need trees removed or do you need them simply pruned? While most tree removal companies can do both services, it is always best to have a good idea on what you want so that the companies you are calling can let you know what is involved in their process. It is a good idea to have a list of questions handy for the companies that you are considering, as not all tree pruning companies are created equal.

The Portland area is famous for its greenery and stunning landscape that trees provide. So pruning or removing trees takes a unique effort. When coming up with questions for your tree pruning Portland company, be as thorough as possible in the process. You will want to know of course how much of your yard will be impacted before, during, and after the process. If you are having trees removed, you will need to know how they are going to be removed, will they be cut into logs on site, what tools or machinery will be used, and what type of yard cleanup will be required? You also want to ask if the companies will manage the yard cleanup, or if that is expected of you. If you will have any damaged turf during the process, you want to ask about that too, and whether or not that will be replaced by the company in question. Some will and some won't, and there may be additional costs to that, these are all things that you need to ask your tree pruning Portland company. You also want to find out what will happen to the wood when the tree is removed or pruned, can you keep some or will it be recycled or sold in order to reduce the final costs.

When you are looking for tree pruning Portland companies, the list of questions can seem endless. Look for service, safety, and customer satisfaction as your most important qualities in a tree pruning Portland organization.
